FOREWORD

With the Structures Exhibition, children's and young people's art returns to the Govett-Brewster Art Gallery.

The vigour and variety of the work confirm that it has been absent for too long.

The staff of the Gallery have endeavoured, within the constraints of space and resources in the institution, to give maximum exposure to the whole range of creative achievement in the province, from pre-school to senior secondary students. We have also given the work professional attention in terms of display, registration and cataloguing; we are convinced it is deserving of nothing less.

We would like to thank the many individuals and organisations who have helped with the exhibition:

Ray Stoddart, Senior Arts and Crafts Advisor for the Taranaki region — thanks for your unfailing enthusiasm and unflagging energy; it's been a pleasure to work with you.

The teachers of art throughout Taranaki: your support has been magnificent, and the very high response rate has ensured that the exhibition is truly representative.

Our sponsors: Budget Rent A Car John Armstrong Ltd, Radio Taranaki, Averys-Whitcoulls, Hot Bread Shop: you have generously endorsed an event which offers real encouragement to young people, and visual delight to the rest of the community.

The staff of the Taranaki Education Centre, who have responded with their usual generosity to our requests for assistance.

The artists themselves: your creativity and vision will make this a truly memorable exhibition in the history of the Govett-Brewster Art Gallery.

Cheryll Sotheran
Director

The organisation of any exhibition is difficult; the particular nature of the work, the idiosyncrasies of the artist, attitudes to the viewing public, all provide variables that require careful consideration.

When such an exhibition is organised by professional staff within a major public gallery the complexities become greater. Strict procedures are followed and elaborate exhibition criteria have to be met.

But when the artists are unknown and they range in age from three to seventeen years, when you have not previewed their work and their place of work is in any one of the numerous educational institutions within the province — the magnitude of the Structures exhibition begins to become apparent.

Set aside a month in the programme of a major gallery, invite submission of work, begin advertising — and hold your breath.

The response: over one thousand submissions from over sixty educational institutions and the basis of one of the most exciting exhibitions of young people's work ever organised in New Zealand.

The decision by the Govett-Brewster Art Gallery to mount this exhibition is to be applauded. Few New Zealand galleries provide from their own funding the type of extensions education programme as provided by this Gallery, very few exhibit the work of such young artists.

Structures reassures the young people of Taranaki that the Govett-Brewster Art Gallery views their work seriously and sees it as an important and integral part of their lives. At a time when major educational restructuring will require parents and communities to participate more fully in establishing educational priorities, it is hoped they think similarly.

This exhibition will assist them to make that decision.

Adviser, Art and Craft

INSTALLATIONS

Senior students from participating schools were asked to submit proposals for major installation pieces.

Of those that responded Sacred Heart Girls College and Inglewood High School have been selected to carry out their proposal on the Gallery D deck.

INGLEWOOD HIGH SCHOOL

An installation reflecting height and patterns observed within a Norfolk Pine tree constructed from large painted cardboard tubes.

SACRED HEART GIRLS COLLEGE

Kathy Waghorn (F7) and a group of Form 2 students proposed a natural materials installation based upon Journeys and Rivers - with influence from sculptor Andrew Drummond.

Work was submitted from the following educational institutions - early childhood centres, including playcentres, childcare centres and kindergartens, primary schools, intermediate schools and secondary schools. One submission was received from a home school pupil. Abbreviations noted are as used in the main catalogue.
